Being watched

We like to see murderers and thieves end up in prison. If they are caught as a result of being filmed by security cameras, (1) ....., we enjoy it even more. It gives us comforting feeling that ever-improving technology may just be the weapon we have long been looking for in our war against them. Recent scientific breakthroughs have also made it possible to solve crimes that took place decades ago, (2) ..... This, too, is good news; if it is true it means that there really is no hiding place for the wrongdoer, (3) ....., and that crime cannot pay.

The worrying thing is, of course, that it is not only the criminals who are being watched. All of us have now become the stars of films made in shops, (4) ..... Records are kept, and sometimes sold, of the numbers we most often phone, while the E-mails we like to think of as being private and personal are copied and stored by persons unknown. Some will say this is the price of freedom from crime, (5) ..... Others believe it is dangerously similar to the argument used by police states to control their citizens.

- A in car parks and in the high street.
- B that the innocent have nothing to fear.
- C so that just about any story can be worked out from its ending.
- D having their phone calls listened to or their E-mail messages read
- E that the police will always get their man
